My fondest memories of Dale was from high school where he was a chiseled, rock solid young man who was a super nice guy. Every time I would pass by him anywhere on campus, he always gave the biggest smile you could ever imagine. He was a man of few word, but always displayed his affection for his teammates and classmates with his actions.

I remember at football practice one day, Coach Farnham had us on the plank drill. The object of the drill was to hold your ground and don't let anyone move you out of your territory. Dale's turn.....He stood there and destroyed every challenger one by one. Dale and I were tailbacks and Coach Farnham was so amazed that he even put some of the larger players, offensive and defensive linemen on him. Dale destroyed them all! He was rarely if ever tackled by one man. RIP my friend!
