“ Scott,

You can rest assured that your Granny Moore has made it to that "one more world" she always told you about. She is now as young and vibrant as she was in the photo you posted. Her humor and spirit will live on in you.

Love ya,

“ The impact of her life on those who loved and cared for her is immeasurable. Her devotion to her family, regardless of her own needs, is something from which we may all learn. Although we mourn her passing, we can take comfort in her love and know that her love is eternal. Her adoration of her grandson Scott has been inspiring over the 36 years that I have known them. I know that her influence, wisdom, humor, humility, and compassion lives on in him. May she be remembered by her actions, her faith, and, most importantly, the legacy that now lives on within her loved ones. I am honored to have met her and am perpetually thankful that she helped to groom the wonderful man that I can call friend.##imported-begin##Lana McCall##imported-end##

“ My sympathies and prayers to you and your family.

Scott -

You are an amazing person, and more important - an amazing friend. I know what an influence and source of support your grandmother has been to you. May she finally rest in peace.

*In the words of Granny Moore herself, "This ol world and one more!"
We'll get through it together.*

“ Scott,

Your grandmother continues to know how much you love her. May she rest in peace, my friend.

Mrs. Moore, I know you were an amazing woman. Your grandson made sure we (even those of us who never met you) all knew.

God bless,
