He was the son of the late Herbert Doyle Morgan Sr. and Christine Jones Morgan of Seneca. He was born in 1929, grew up in Seneca and attended Seneca public schools, graduating with the class of 1946. He later attended the U.S. Naval Academy, class of 1951, and then returned to the College of Clemson to finish his degree after four years of ROTC training. He received an officer commission in the USAR, where he served a number of years in the late 1950s.

After graduating from Clemson, he joined the American Cyanamid Chemical Company in sales and management. He worked in Rockefeller Plaza and lived in New York, N.Y., until he returned to Seneca in 1957 to become more active in civil and political affairs.

He was a member of the Seneca Jaycees becoming its president in 1960, the year it sponsored the organization of the Seneca Chamber of Commerce and was named a "young man of the year" in the same year. He was also a member of the Seneca Rotary Club for more than 40 years and a life member of the Masonic Lodge being a 32-degree Scottish Rite and a Shriner.

As a child, he attended Corinth Baptist Church near Seneca, where his mother taught school. As an adult, he joined the Seneca Methodist Church and served on its board during the time the current St. Marks Methodist Church was built in the Adams Subdivision in the 1960s. After his marriage, he joined the Seneca Presbyterian Church, where he served as deacon and elder for more than 50 years.

He owned and ran the Nimmons Farm Supply Co., and the Mountain View Milling Co. in Seneca for 15 years. After the lakes covered much of the farmland in the 1960s, he returned to the USC Law School, receiving his Juris Doctorate in 1971. After his graduation, he returned to Seneca and practiced law for more than 30 years.

He organized the Keowee Federal Savings and Loan in 1979, which later became Sun Trust. He was instrumental in organizing the East Seneca Water District, developed two residential subdivisions, Indian Hills and Cherokee Garden, on the new Clemson Blvd., in the 1960s. He proposed the idea to rename the Excelsior voting precinct to Ravenel and to build the Wells Highway, south perimeter road, establishing Ravenel Elementary School, which unified the greater Clemson area with the Clemson Airport.

He was elected to and served in the S.C. House of Representatives and S.C. Senate for 16 years. During this time, he was instrumental in helping the leaders of Oconee County upgrade its secondary schools, road, airport, industries, public libraries, law enforcement centers, public health centers and recreational centers. He also helped welcome Duke Power to the community encouraging the building of the Lake Keowee Nuclear plant project.

He married his wife, Kate Nimmons; daughter of Lucia Lewis and William Pickens Nimmons, in 1956. They had two children, Jean Nimmons Morgan King (Mrs. C.A. King), of Seneca; and Robert Edward Morgan (deceased). Grandchildren are Jordan Kate King, Justin Robert, Landon Edward and Taylor Wade Morgan.

He was preceded in death by his brother, Marshall Jones Morgan, who is survived by his wife, Jeanne; and their three children, Sharon Morgan, Sally Lawton and Edward Morgan.
