“ I went to see Lynn at the Cottingham House about 3 weeks before she died. She was alone and we had a short visit. As I got up to leave she said”Let me know if there is anything I can do for you.” I told Margaret that only a true Southern Lady could be in hospice care and still wonder how she can help her guest.I believe that we show our true selves when things are the most desperate.Don did a good day’s work when he found Lynn.Fortunately he was intelligent enough to realize what a treasure he had found and persistent enough to hang on forever.Prayers and blessings to her family.Love Margaret and Frank Axson

“ I worked with Lynn for many years. She was a dedicated and compassionate teacher. She cared about the whole student. She was always there to do anything the children needed. Seldom remember her ever being absent from her calling. Grew to love her as professional and friend. My sincere sympathy and condolences to all family. She was best grandmother ever. Many precious memories to hold close during grief.
