It's been 3 months since she's been gone, nearly to the minute. I miss her so much. I think about things that I guess I've never thought about before, even down to candy bars that she bought me as a child. It's amazing, the memories that flood in after you loose a parent. I would've told her that those things meant so much to me if I would've thought about them sooner. She meant the world to me.
