“ Cleve was a good friend and a talented musician. I was also a friend & classmate of Cleve's younger brother Sam. Drums were my first instruments; I started playing them as a child. In Jr. High, I decided to try learning the guitar. My Dad was an excellent guitarist, but Cleve was my first "non-relative" guitar teacher. He taught me how to play the guitar, and he encouraged me to never stop playing. Now, I still play guitar; our son is a drummer. Our twin daughters are musicians in the U.S. Military. I'm grateful for Cleve helping me learn to play the guitar, but much more grateful to call him my friend. Tammy & I send our prayers and heartfelt condolences to the entire Duvall family.
