“ We have lost a friend, an extraordinary man with a good heart and excellent mind. We knew him first as a skilled craftsman. He enjoyed working on old houses and brought to his work not just his skills as a craftsman but also imagination and ingenuity in solving problems as they arose. We came to know him as a part-time guitarist and singer who thought a lot of his dogs but particularly as one who was blessed with a good marriage and strong religious faith. We appreciated his service to the country in the Vietnam War. Wanda and the rest of his family: please accept the condolences of good friends,
